Blogs

We have many blogs that are updated on a regular basis here in the AU Libraries. If you would like to start a blog, see Beth Nicol or Tony Oravet in RBD Systems. These blogs are intended to keep everyone in the Libraries informed about what you are doing, what conferences you have been to, or other information that you would like to share, without having to email something out to the entire libraries mailing list.

The links on the right are of the blogs that we currently have in the protected Staff Intranet.

Spotlight on the PAMS Library!

*The PAMS Library Spotlight in the Leisure Reading Collection

For the Spring Semester, the Leisure Reading Collection is shining the library spotlight on the Physical and Mathematical Sciences (PAMS) Library. This library, located in the Davey Lab right across from the HUB, is home to librarians and collections supporting the physical and mathematical sciences. In addition, PAMS hosts a weekly Friday Flicks series, featuring films that highlight current issues and ideas in the physical and mathematical science world.

Beginnings

Today, January 21, marks a new beginning for the libraries at University Park. As of today, the Leisure Reading

Collection at University Park is a reality! No more trying to figure out what to read over vacation. No more combing through the stacks trying to find a book you want to read just for the sake of reading it. Now you can browse a collection of books - bestsellers, popular titles, award winners - books that you want to read. Check it out in

Make $50 for two hours' work

April 2nd, 2008

The Online Computer Library Center, Inc., (OCLC) is looking for people willing to demonstrate and discuss how they conduct research for a paper, project or publication.

The one to two-hour in-person interviews will be held in Room 244A of the Sullivant Library, at the corner of North High Street and 15th Avenue, or the Prior Health Sciences Library at 376 W. 10th Ave. Interviews will be scheduled the weeks of April 7 and April 14.

Each session will take 1 to 2 hours.

Participants should be:

- Undergraduate or graduate students, or instructors
- Non-professionals in the library or database searching

Library employees, including student employees, are not eligible to participate.

Participants will be asked to comment while doing their own research at the library or their office. Participants will also need to bring a laptop capable of a wireless connection to the Internet. Comments will be
